Special by wire to Times-Democrat.

DETROIT, MICH., NOV. 26.—THE EXPLOSION OF THE BOILERS AT THE PENBERTHY INJECTOR COMPANY'S PLANT THIS MORNING HAS CAUSED GREAT EXCITEMENT ALL OVER THE CITY AND MANY HOMES CLOSED WITH MOURNING EMBLEMS BECAUSE OF THE DEATH OF SOME MEMBERS OF THE FAMILY EMPLOYED IN THE WORKS AT THE TIME THE BOILERS LET GO AND HURLED SO MANY EMPLOYES INTO ETERNITY.

MANAGER

Of the Plant Says He Believes Fifty Men Were Killed.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26.—At 9:30 this morning the boiler in the Penberthy injector Co.'s factory on Brooklyn avenue, exploded with terrific force, completely wrecking the new addition and the engine room. The fire department has been summoned and is trying to rescue those in the debris. The explosion could be heard for miles. Brick and pieces of wreckage were thrown for blocks. It is said there were 100 employes in the place at the time of the explosion, and at first the emergency hospital had 12 bodies of killed and wounded. They were scattered in all parts of the building. On the outside, women were waiting anxiously to learn of the fate of their relatives. S. O. Johnson, manager of the company, made the following statement: "I think there are 50 killed in all." The building contained 75 employes, mostly men. It was 54 by 100 feet, and is a complete wreck. There were 75 employes in the other building some of whom are hurt.

The trouble was caused by the decision by the judge, liberating a negro, who had difficulty with a white man, in which both were stabbed. Trial of Mrs. Bonine.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The trial of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine for the murder of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., at the Kenmore hotel last May, is on in real earnest. Baker, the man who saw Mrs. Bonine descend the fire escape; Hopkins, who roomed under Ayres, and Miss Lawless and Miss Minas, who roomed on either side of him, testified. Policeman Drew testified that there was room enough behind the door of Ayres' room for a man to have been there while the door was opened to admit another person, a contention which the prosecution deny, and also that there were empty cartridges in Ayres' room before the pistol with which the shooting was done was emptied by Officer Brady after the tragedy. This would tend to establish the theory of the defense that the pistol belonged to Ayres. Miss Minas testified that Ayres and Mrs. Bonine ate ice cream and cake in her room the night before the tragedy, and at the time there was no evidence of ill-feeling.

Wild Bill Won.

Louisville, Nov. 26.—"Wild Bill" Hanrahan of New York got the decision over Jimmy Handler of Newark, N. J., in the eighteenth round of a scheduled 25-round contest at catch weights, Marquis of Queensberry rules, before the Southern Athletic club. The secretary of war and other officials also were called upon.

Trouble Averted.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The threatened trouble over the boundary line between Chile and the Argentine republic has been averted for the present at least. Signor Infante the charge of the Chilean legation here, conveyed to this government an assurance that the two principals to the boundary questions have just succeeded in reaching an amicable and satisfactory understanding. This statement has given great satisfaction, for it is believed here that hostilities between Chile and Argentine would without doubt involve three-fourths of South America before they terminated.

HOPES

To End the Rising on Island.

A Charge Made

By Americans Upon a Fillipino Brigade

Resulted in the Utter Routing of the Enemy, Many of Whom were Killed.

A Lieutenant Got Sixty Yards Ahead of His Troops and Came Near Getting Killed in Consequence.

Manilla, Nov. 26.—Second Lieutenant Louis J. Van Schaick of Fourth regiment, while scouting with a few men of that regiment, met 150 insurgents, who had attacked and sacked the hamlet of Siaracs, near Cavite. Upon seeing the Filipinos, Van Schaick ordered his men to charge them. The command was obeyed, and Van Schaick, being mounted, reached the insurgents 60 yards in advance of his men. He killed three of them with his revolver. An insurgent fired his rifle point blank at Van Schaick at four paces, but missed. Lieutenant Van Schaick was then knocked from his horse. He jumped to his feet and engaged in a hand-to-hand conflict with the enemy, using the butt of his revolver. He sustained two severe wounds, one of which nearly severed his wrist. At this point the lieutenant's men arrived, rescued him and put the insurgents to flight. Van Schaick is in the military hospital at Manilla and is doing well.

General Hughes, commander of the department of the Visayas, reports that negotiations are about completed for the surrender of the insurgent leader Sampson on Bonol island. This surrender will doubtless end the revolt against American authority in Bohol as Sampson is acknowledged to be the best insurgent leader there.

To Fight the Railway Combine.

St. Paul, Nov. 26.—Attorney General Douglas, who has returned home, made the following statement regarding the effort to be made to prevent the alleged consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway companies, through the medium of the Northern Securities company of New Jersey: "I shall earnestly cooperate with Governor Van Sant in fighting any consolidation which is in violation of law, and will do anything in my power to encourage further legislation of a practical nature, either state or national, which is called to preserve competition. The organization of this great New Jersey corporation for the purchase of a controlling interest in rival roads, two of which cross and re-cross Minnesota, is a clear violation of the spirit of the act of 1881, the validity of which was sustained by the supreme court of the United States."

The trial of the sheriff will be held early next month, and in the meanwhile pressure will be brought upon the governor to have him removed.

During the night the house caught fire and all three children were burned to death. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of criminal carelessness.

HEAVIER

Loss Than was at First Supposed

Resulted from Storm on the Atlantic Coast.

At Least a Dozen Lives were Lost and the Monetary Loss Along the Shores was Extremely Heavy.

New York, Nov. 26.—Reports of the damage done by the storm of Saturday night and Sunday continue to come in. Details from points on the Jersey coast, the southern coast of Long Island and the upper shore of Long Island sound show that the destruction was widespread and the monetary loss much heavier than at first supposed. At least a dozen lives were lost. Long Branch reports show that hardly a building there escaped some damage. The wreck of the tug Haddon at Long Branch is complete. The railroads are gradually getting their tracks in working order, but at some places no trains have yet been run. Besides the loss resulting from stoppage of traffic it will take many thousands of dollars to repair the breaks. Temporary repairs are being made as fast as possible.

The wealthy New Yorkers who have summer houses upon the upper shore of the sound visited them to find wreck and ruin in all directions. The shore improvements are in ruins, while fine shade trees are laid low and extensive lawns piled high with sand and wreckage.

Catholic Indian Schools.

Washington, Nov. 26. — It was announced that the Catholic archbishops of America, at their annual meeting, adopted the following resolution: "That we heartily commend, and will practically encourage work for the raising of the amount annually needed for the support of the Catholic Indian schools, and will similarly encourage wider efforts aiming at bringing the benefits of Catholic training to the Catholic children in the government schools." The personnel of the Catholic Indian bureau is as follows: Cardinal James Gibbons, president; Rev. William H. Ketcham, director; Very Rev. E. R. Dyer, D. D. treasurer; Charles S. Lusk, secretary.

McCaffrey was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery. The police claim that he had some of the railroad tickets in his possession when arrested.

Foul Play Suspected.

Marion, O., Nov. 26.—J. M. Williams, 60, was burned to death in a log cabin five miles east of Marion. There are rumors of foul play and that the house was set on fire to cover up the crime. Only a few bones and several of his teeth are all that could be found.

General Wood Sails.

HEAVY

Losses are Reported to Have Been Sustained on Both Sides

In the Engagement Fought

By Liberals and Government Troops Near Colon. Forces of United States Marines Clear the Isthmus. The Bombardment Postponed.

Colon, Nov. 26.—An armed guard of marines from the United States battleship Iowa has re-established the transit across the isthmus, and details from the Iowa's marines are now protecting each passenger train.

There has been fierce fighting at Empire station, on the railroad line between Panama and Colon, between the insurgents and the troops of the Colombian government, with very heavy losses on both sides. There is no jubilation, which is evidence that the Liberal army is not advancing towards Panama. It is reported to have been defeated at Matachin by General Alban's command. The latter is said to be pushing on Colon.

At a conference held on board the British cruiser Tribune, at which General Ignacio Peliaco, Senor De La Rosa, secretary of General Diaz, and the commanders of the foreign ships were present, the general agreed, at the request of the naval commanders and on the ground of humanity, having in view the large foreign population of Colon, not to land troops here or open fire on the town before 6 o'clock Friday evening.

At the head of several hundred men General Alban left Panama by train for Empire station, where the Liberals are reported to be in fairly strong numbers. His purpose was to surprise and rout them. The train bearing these troops was held up just before it arrived at Culebra station, owing to the Liberals opening fire on Alban's advance guard. Alban disembarked his men from the train, which returned to Panama. The fighting at Culebra lasted from 4:40 until 9 p. m. The government troops advanced and the fighting was stubborn all along the railroad line until Empire station, a mile and a half distant, was reached. The Liberals retreated slowly, Alban's men following them until the latter eventually reached Matachin station, where General Alban met and conferred with Captain Perry of the Iowa, who was returning from Colon on an armored train. It is understood that Captain Perry will not allow the railroad to transport troops, consequently General Alban and his men were forced to push ahead on foot. It is said here that they thus reached San Pablo, where the Liberals are in force, and that fighting is taking place there. The Liberals are under the command of General Luege. Between the stations of Culebra and Empire over 150 killed and wounded men could be seen along the track. The sight was gruesome. There is no proper Red Cross organization and the wounded lacked care. The Liberals at Colon declare the majority of the men killed on the line to be Conservative troops, and that the rebels are still in force along the railroad.

In government circles in Panama there is still entire confidence in General Alban, and it is believed there that this Conservative general is able to cope with the present situation and skillfully overcome the apparently insurmountable difficulties before him.

Uncle Sam's Position.

Washington, Nov. 26.—It is pretty well understood here that there is to be no bombardment of Colon by either side. While Commander McCrea was given wide discretionary power and nothing was said to him about stopping the bombardment directly, nevertheless the state department established a precedent in these matters last year when it instructed Mr. Gudger to warn some insurgents at Panama that they would not be allowed to bombard that port. If the government troops on the Pinzon should persist in their purpose it is said that the commanders of the various warships at Colon would require that ample time be allowed for the withdrawal of foreigners, and the attacking force, to escape restraint, would be obliged to direct their bombardment with such rare precision as to destroy the insurgent defenses without harming the railroad property, and even without endangering the passage of trains, conditions probably not to be met.

Government Satisfied.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Mr. Herran, the charge of the Colombian legation, is very well satisfied with the tenor of the advices which have come to hand from Acting Governor Arjona of Panama, who reported that the rebel army having been defeated at Culebra and Emperador, General Alban had now marched on Colon. His theory is that General Alban completely dislodged the rebel force which had rendezvoused at Chorrera, from which place Mr. Herran believes they retreated to Culebra and Emperador, where they again took a stand. Their defeat at these places, Mr. Herran says, leaves General Alban free to march to Colon. Mr. Herran thinks that General Alban now has at least 1,000 well equipped and thoroughly armed men, besides which 600 men are on board the Colombian boat Pinzon, now at Colon. Mr. Herran asserts that the rebels have not got at the outside, more than 500 men.

Killed His Man and Escaped.

Warren, O., Nov. 26.—Alexander Juaraute, 20, shot and killed Raphael Sambrino at Niles. Both men are Italians. The deed was committed with a rifle and was the result of a quarrel. Juaraute is at large.

FOREIGN

Appeals are Received by Uncle Sam

For an Ending of the War in South Africa.

A London Editor Informs the Public of the Real Sentiment in America Concerning the Unjust War.

London, Nov. 26. — Sir Thomas Weyss Reid, the author and editor, in an article entitled "A Message From America," in the December number of The Nineteenth Century and After, will quote one of the most distinguished members of the American cabinet as saying: "I do not think you in England realize the depth of feeling that exists outside of your own country on the subject of the South African war, and the extreme gravity of the situation which that feeling has brought into existence. It is terrible to think of the pitifulness of the whole thing and of the loss suffered by universal humanity owing to the effacement of England for two years and the consequent absence of her influence on the side of justice and progress." Sir Sir Thomas says the member of the cabinet in question told him that almost daily appeals were being made to the government of the United States by representatives of European powers to take steps to end the war.

NO CHANGE

Charge Made Upon a Force of Natives by Lieutenant Van Schaick.

Shot Three Filipino Soldiers,

Was Then Knocked Off of His Horse by the Natives and Fought a Hand to Hand Encounter Until Assistance Arrived.

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 26.—The convention of West Virginia and Virginia coal operators and miners has opened here. Many delegates from the various miners' unions have arrived. It will be an important meeting. The United Mine Workers' officials have conducted various campaigns in West Virginia to perfect an organization, but without avail. The operators in some of the other states have insisted that the West Virginia miners be organized. In the event that they fail, the Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio operators threaten to withdraw from the interstate agreement. This would leave the United Mine Workers' officials without any ground to stand upon. The coming election in the Federation of Labor and United Mine Workers will play a conspicuous part in this convention.

Another Raid Anticipated.

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 26.—Obstinacy on the part of one of the three operators of the Prospect Hill coal mine to accede to the union's demands for the state wage scale, it is claimed, is likely to precipitate another raid like that of last week from mine workers of surrounding unions. The local union held secret meetings and dispatched a committee to confer with the operators, but nothing was agreed upon. Tuesday night the 16 local unions here will organize a central labor union that proposes to fight the coal operators to a finish. For several days foreign coal has been purchased to run the pumps.

German Tariff Bill.

Berlin, Nov. 26.—The reichstag began the discussion of the new tariff bill, which, with its preambles, etc., comprises several thick volumes. A special preamble to the customs tariff sets forth the necessity of making arrangements independently of the existing veterinary and police prohibitions and restrictions concerning the importation of cattle. The preamble explains this necessity because the tariff has to reckon with the possibility of the abolition of these prohibitions and restrictions. Therefore, the preamble asserts, in the interests of home production suitable duties must be provided on cattle and meat, even if the effect of these duties is not felt economically until later.

Kaiser Talks War.

Berlin, Nov. 26.—Emperor William, while addressing naval recruits at Kiel, said among other things: "I desire war as little as did my lamented grandfather, who, however, when war was thrust upon him, set off at the head of the army and shared in its hardships and dangers." Then expressing a hope that the recruits would be true to their oath and show themselves worthy of their fathers in 1870-71, the emperor said: "If I must lead you in war, you must not think that the emperor has not ordered well, for soldiers must often perform arduous service; but I have taken my soldier oath like yourselves, and I must perform my duty like yourselves, each in his place."

Demands of Pittsburg Switchmen.

Pittsburg, Nov. 26.—The switchmen on seven railroads of Pittsburg have decided to strike. At a meeting of the Brotherhood of Switchmen, which was attended by about 600 members, this action was decided upon. In anticipation of possible trouble, it is learned that the Pennsylvania and other railroads have made application to the city police for protection. The demand of the men is that the Chicago rate be paid here. This rate is 27 cents an hour for day conductors and 29 cents for night conductors of switch engines, helpers 25 cents day and 27 cents night.

"It would never do," added Sir Thomas, "to give up when only a pulse-beat came between us and victory." The reception to the challenger for the America's cup was marked with the greatest enthusiasm, and all classes were represented at the banquet.

Government in Control.

Washington, Nov. 26. — The secretary of the navy cabled Captain Parry of the Iowa to assume full command of all the United States naval forces on both sides of the isthmus, in order to insure harmonious operations. Consul General Gudger's last dispatch was as follows: "Our troops have arrived at Matachin, one-half of the way across the isthmus. No obstruction, and Colombian government seemed to be victorious over the insurgents."

St. Johns, Nov. 26.—Four large icebergs are visible from this port. They are drifting south in the track of Atlantic shipping. Icebergs have never before been known to pass here so late in the season. Their presence is consequently all the more dangerous to ocean shipmasters, who do not now expect to find icebergs on the Grand Banks.

River.

Successful Test is Given the Roller Boat.

Inventor Will Now Construct an Ocean Roller With a Freight Capacity of 4,000,000 Bushels of Wheat.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Knapp's roller boat demonstrated its ability to roll. In a blinding snowstorm, with a stiff north wind, it rolled from Prescott across the St. Lawrence river to Ogdensburg, but missed the channel to the upper harbor and rolled into the soft mud on a bar abreast the city, and settled hard, surrounded by snow and ice. The inventor and stockholders who were on board were taken off in small boats. The inventor claims success. The boat is 110 feet long and 22 feet in diameter. An engine is suspended in a car in the center. The motive power is applied in the form of a climbing engine. Mr. Knapp says he will now build an ocean roller boat 80 feet long and 200 feet in diameter, with a capacity of 4,000,000 bushels of wheat and a speed of 13 knots an hour.

After a Negro.

Macon, Ga., Nov. 26. — A warrant was sworn out for Henry Stevens, colored, chairman of the Twiggs county Republican committee, charging him with attempting the murder of a young colored woman named Curtis, who, it is said, he shot in a deserted house Friday night. The woman escaped through a hole in the floor and lay in the swamp all night. Officers are in search of Stevens but he has not been found.

Texarkana, Ark., Nov. 26. — News reached here that Edward Rochelle, a prominent Red river planter, had been killed by two negroes. It is reported that the negroes entered Rochelle's store, brained him and then robbed the place. Excitement runs high and mob violence is feared if the negroes are caught.

Advance in Telegraphy.

The new Hungarian system of telegraphy is a success, says the Baltimore Sun. The system has been installed between Budapest and Fiume, a distance of 375 miles, and is in practical working order at a speed of 40,000 words an hour. Messages are written in Roman characters and require no transcription. As a system it is an ingenious combination of the telegraph, the telephone and photography, the messages being written on sensitized paper by ray light and developed and fixed by an automatic process.

NO ATTEMPT ON THE INTERIOR.

Lieutenant von Edelsheim, an Army Officer, Claims That After American Fleet Had Been Destroyed One Army Corps Would Land at an Unexpected Point and Reduce Us to Terms.

A scheme for the invasion of the United States by a German army has been prepared by Lieutenant von Edelsheim of the general staff of the German army. The author presupposes a victory by the imperial army, and, indeed, would dispatch his army of invasion confidently toward America in the wake of the warships, says the New York Journal. He thinks our regular troops available for defense would amount to not more than 20,000 men, and feels little fear of volunteers or militia because the national guard did not, as a whole, offer its services for the war with Spain, and because they are "badly armed and drilled." The strategist outlines his plan in an essay which he has caused to be published in Berlin.

War against the United States of North America would be carried on under conditions necessarily different from those of a campaign against England.

In recent years we have had several occasions of political difficulties with that nation, for the most part arising out of commercial questions. Until the present time these difficulties have been smoothed over by concessions on our part. But since there is a limit to concessions we may ask what powerful means we can make use of, if need arise, to check the action of the United States against our interests; in other words, to impose our will on them by force.

Now, our first element of power is our navy. It has every prospect of combating with success the naval forces of the United States, dispersed as they are over two oceans. But it is evident, in view of the vast extent of territory and the immense resources of the United States, that a naval defeat would not be decisive.

For the very reason of the great extent of the United States an invasion of the interior is not to be considered seriously, but there would be chances of success in striking blows upon the seacoast and cutting the great arteries of exportation and importation so as to paralyze the industrial and commercial life of the United States, which would oblige that power to accept peace.

If the mobilization of the transport squadron and the corps of invasion began at the moment of departure of our fighting fleet for American waters, it will be admitted that the invading troops might come into action on American soil at the end of about four weeks. The United States are not in a condition to bring into opposition within an equal time an army equal in numbers to our corps of invasion.

Actually the regular army of the United States is on a footing of 65,000 men, but of this number there are not more than 30,000 available for the defense of the mother country. Besides that, there must be deducted from that number at least 10,000 men who cannot be spared from surveillance of the Indian territories and from the maritime defenses.

There remain, then, only 20,000 regular troops for the actual campaign. True, there are besides about 100,000 militia, but in the late war the greater part did not answer the call.

Because of the length of the voyage the transportation of the German troops could not be done by surprise, but still the landing could be accomplished suddenly at an unexpected point of the coast. When we consider that the Americans have no plan of mobilization well worked out in time of peace and take into account also the inexperience and weakness of the regular army of the United States, we may confidently hope that a corps of invasion, operating with suddenness, would have chances of success.

We could not dream, of course, of permanent occupation of any great extent of American territory, which would require an army of too high effectiveness, but it would be feasible to occupy the principal maritime cities.

A series of coast landings, using comparatively small forces, could be applied to this purpose. It would be difficult for the Americans to oppose them with success. Although their excellent system of railways would enable the Americans to concentrate in short time troops at the threatened points on the coast, the invader, by feints of landing now at one point, now at another, could at last attain his end with the co-operation of the naval force.

The corps of invasion could even take the offensive against the enemy's forces while the latter were yet imperfectly concentrated, or he could avoid an attack on their part by reembarking and moving away to land at still another point.

It is well to remark here that Germany is the only great power in position single handed to attack the United States. England in case of war with that nation could only gain success on the sea. She would be powerless to defend Canada, where the Americans could make good their maritime reverses. Finally no other great power than Germany has of her own sufficient transport vessels to undertake such an operation as here described.

THE BUSY SOUTH SIDE.

The Day's Record of Events in That Locality.

Work Resumed on West Kibby Street Paving. Church Indebtedness Reduced. Crossley Well in Perry Tp. Prooves a Good One.

The Foreign Missionary society of Grace church held an interesting meeting at Rev. W. J. Hagerman's home on south Elizabeth street this afternoon. Important business was transacted, followed by an instructive program.

Local friends will be pleased to learn of the wedding of Attorney J. G. Hirsh to Miss Ola States, at the home of the bride's parents at West Carlo Sunday evening. Mr. Hirch is principal of the schools there, also postmaster of the place. His many south side Lima friends will tender congratulations.

Jewel Commandery of the Red Cross society held an enjoyable social session at Mrs. E. C. Ring's last night. The affair was a financial success.

All the south Lima groceries will be closed the entire day Thanksgiving, other business generally will observe the day by closing.

Work has been resumed upon the west Kibby paving. It will now be completed without further delay. This will be gratifying to residents upon the street, who were becoming displeased by the delay.

Five hundred dollars of the south Lima Christian church indebtedness has been liquidated within the past few days. This is a compliment to Rev. Sims' incessant labor. Though in charge of the local congregation only a few months he has systematized the church's finances to advantage. His zealousness is greatly appreciated.

A strange gentleman almost staggered into Cramer's drug store yesterday in a completely exhausted condition. He was a pitiable victim of consumption. On a street car he suffered a hemorrhage. Two men assisted him into the store where for awhile it was thought he would expire. Everything possible was done for his relief. He finally recovered sufficiently to proceed up into the city.

A committee upon entertainment met at Rev. Sims' last night to make arrangements for a Christmas concert to be given at the church. The program will be elaborate. Some of the best musical talent in the city will be secured.

Sneak thieves entered J. W. Rathbone's barn on west Kibby street Sunday evening, taking several articles of value.

Joseph Painter is the proud father of a bouncing baby boy that came to his home yesterday.

Crossley Brother's today had oil well number two upon their lease in Perry township shot. The first well which came in two weeks ago is a very satisfactory one. It is thought the second one will be equally productive.

The Ministerial Association yesterday approvingly received an essay by Rev. Sims, of the south Lima Christian church upon the subject of "Financial Honesty Characteristic of True Religion." Besides the association members there were present a number of delegates to the special meeting of the Presbyterian synod. The minister's arguments and his deductions received the approbation of all. The paper was pronounced one of the most lucid and comprehensive produced before the association for some time. It was replete in biblical lore.

The advent of a lusty baby boy is a cause for delight at the home of John Eberly.

Rev. J. W. Underwood, of south Lima, who is conducting an evangelistic meeting at Uniopolis, writes he is meeting with more than anticipated success. Twenty-seven have already identified themselves with the church. Two candidates from his church came here to receive the ordinance of baptism yesterday. Mr. Underwood is a zealous young man of ability.

William Pfeifer, who has been precariously ill at his home on south Main street, is slightly improved today though not yet in a very encouraging condition.

Tomorrow evening Rev. Sims will assist Rev. Brundige in the revival services at the First Christian church.

J. G. Roder and wife, recently married, were the victims of an old time belling at their home on south Metcalf street, last night.

Mrs. P. G. Platt is very ill at her home on west Kibby street.

M. M. Deitz is confined to his home on Circular street, by severe illness.

Rev. E. T. Bowdle, on south Elizabeth street, returned yesterday from conducting a successful revival at the Methodist church at Fort Recovery. He has a number of other engagements in this and adjoining states.

Frank Rickets the popular clerk at Cramer's was unable to be at the store today on account of illness.

Mrs. Harga, of Butler, Ind., visiting Mrs. Sanford Coon, on south Elizabeth street, has returned home.

Mrs. J. W. Huffman, on west Vine street, is back from a visit at Marion.

A pretty new girl baby is the center of attraction at G. H. Bluem's on east Vine street.

Adolph Knisley, the guest of Dr. J. E. Mell, has gone to his home at New Philadelphia.

W. H. Hutchinson, of Huntington, Ind., called upon south side relatives yesterday. He was accompanied by his son, William, who visited Lloyd Mell, on east Vine street.

Captain John Mack, of the south side fire department, is concluding his annual vacation afield. He is an enthusiastic hunter in which pastime he will indulge the ensuing week.

The south Lima rescue mission has inaugurated a series of revival meetings at the mission house. Rev. Arnold will be in charge. A special effort will be made to interest boys, whom it is difficult to have attend the churches. This affords vast opportunities in this locality. Several similar attempts have been made formerly with varieting results. Those in charge are not however, discouraged. They are actuated by praiseworthy motives, which they hope will ultimately triumph. While this element will be of special concern no irreverent conduct will be tolerated. To the discredit of some of those in whom a special interest was taken on other occasions, it is alleged they abused the privileges accorded so far forgetting themselves as to disturb the meetings. The mission management thoroughly comprehend the conditions of their too frequently thankless tasks, but despite all disparagements are determined to force the issue to good results. Equally unsuspicious conditions have been turned to good avail. In its present crusade the mission has the earnest approval of many, who are confident of much good resulting.

Board Held a Short Meeting Last Night

And Adjournment After Allowing Numerous Bills, Including the Salaries of the Teachers.

The board of education held an unusually short meeting last night, there being but little important business to transact outside of the discussion about the new additions and the regular payment of bills. The building and repairs committee reported progress being made in the work of building the new additions.

The vacancy in the high school caused by the resignation of Miss Packard has at least been filled, the teachers and salaries committee recommending the appointment of Miss Mary M. Jones. The report was adopted.

It took the finance committee some time to go over the numerous bills, and the following were allowed:

The Empress Did Not Forget.

The Empress Eugenie and Lord Roberts are firm friends, the foundation of the friendship being laid in one of those thoughtful little acts that make the commander in chief so justly beloved. After the death of the prince imperial Lord Roberts went himself to the spot on which he fell and gathered a tiny bunch of flowers, which he sent to the sorrowing mother. When Lord Roberts suffered a similar bereavement himself last year, one of the first letters of condolence he received came from the empress, who insisted on writing it with her own hand in spite of the rheumatism that makes it so difficult for her to hold a pen.

The Democratic Advocate, of Greenville, contains an account of the wedding of Miss Margaret Clarey to Everett B. Chester, of Rives, Tenn., which will be of interest to the many friends of the bride in this city. Miss Clarey is a sister of Mrs. Thos. McNeff, of north Jackson street, and has been in the habit of spending most of the summer in Lima, as the latter's guest. The nuptials are thus described:

"At 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Mr. Everett B. Chester, of Rives, Tenn., was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Jean Clarey, of Rossville, this county. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop William Henry Elder at his residence in Cincinnati, in the presence of but a few witnesses.

"The groom is a prosperous lumber dealer at Rives, Tenn., and is one of the leading citizens of the town. His bride is one of our county's most estimable ladies, and for several years has been a successful and well liked teacher in the schools of northern Darke county. She is an excellent lady and her friends are loath to see her leave them, but extend congratulations and their very best wishes for a happy and contented life in her new home.

"Mr. and Mrs. Chester after the ceremony, started on a wedding trip to New York, Washington, St. Louis, and Chicago. They will be gone about two weeks, when they will return to Rossville for a few days and then proceed to their future home at Rives.

"A very pleasant ante-nuptial occurrence took place at the home of the bride's father. A number of the bride's friends in different places were summoned together and the evening was pleasantly spent by the group. Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock, a three course wedding breakfast was served, after which the crowd all accompanied the bridal couple as far as Greenville on the way to Cincinnati. In the party were: Misses Lillian Hersch, of Celina; Jessie Pontiers, of Rockford; Nelle Doan, Minnie Meyer and Anna Graham, of Lima; Celia Galvin, of Bradford; Sadie and Mary Maher, of Greenville, Kittie Caldwell and Trix Clarey, of Rossville, and Mr. Wm. Otto, of Cincinnati."

Her Salary the Highest.

The highest salaried woman employee in any government department in Washington is Miss Lillian A. Norton of Massachusetts. She has just been appointed superintendent of postal finance in the postoffice department in place of a man, Albert W. Bingham, who died about ten days ago after holding that post for more than thirty years.

It isn't a wonderfully high salaried post after all, though, compared with some of those held by men. It pays $2,250 a year, but that is excellent pay in Washington for a woman, and Miss Norton is envied, naturally, by her sister employees of Uncle Sam. She has been in the government service for fifteen years, beginning as a stenographer in the dead letter office. At Mr. Bingham's death she was the chief clerk of the finance division, and she succeeded to this post simply because she knew more about the work of the division than any person in it.

TRIBUTE

Of Love and Respect Paid Today

To the Memory of the Late Thomas Cahill.

Funeral Services Held from St. Rose Church This Morning and by the Lodge of Elks in a Body.

The funeral of Thomas Cahill, the late general foreman of the Detroit Southern railroad shops, who passed away Saturday morning after a brief illness, from pneumonia, was held from St. Rose church this morning and was very largely attended, there being especially a large number of railroad men and members of Lima Lodge No. 162, B. P. O. Elks, in attendance. The members of the Elk lodge met at the lodge rooms at 8:00 o'clock and marched from there to the late home of the deceased on west Elm street, where leave of the remains were taken at 8:15 o'clock. The members of the lodge escorted the remains to St. Rose church and after the services there, led the funeral procession from the church to Market and Elizabeth streets.

The services at the church were very beautiful and impressive. They were conducted by the Rev. Father Rupert, pastor of St. Johns church who delivered an eloquent sermon after the solemn mass had been celebrated. The floral offerings that testified to the high esteem and respect in which the deceased was held were very profuse and beautiful, the floral pieces and sprays being so numerous that they filled an open carriage that followed the funeral car to Gethsemani cemetery where the remains were consigned to rest.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Chas. F. Price, S. Hartsing, H. K. Fredericks, John Finley, Frank Whitmer and Peter Spellacy.

GAS

Was the Principal Topic

At the Meeting

Held by City Council Last Night.

Messrs. Shannahan and Hoyt Submitted a Lengthy Report.

James Langan Appointed and Confirmed a Member of the Board of Water Works Trustees —Other Matters.

The city council met in regular session last night with president Davis in the chair and all members present except Mr. Kline.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Several petitions for the location of new street lights were received and referred to the light committee.

Petition to have grade established on Baxter street, south of Elm street, was read and on motion by Mr. Shannahan, the engineer was instructed to report grades for all streets in the machine works addition.

The petition for the proposed division of the Fourth and Fifth wards into two wards each was read and motion by Mr. Baumgardner to refer the proposition to a committee of five members was carried.

Messrs. Hoyt and Shannahan, who were recently appointed, a committee to investigate the natural gas situation submitted the following report:

The committee appointed to investigate the cause of the poor natural gas service, and to devise means for better the service, respectfully report as follows:

The committee has made a careful investigation, and is of the opinion that the poor gas service furnished to the private consumers of the city is properly attributed to the large quantities of gas furnished by the gas company to factories. Until quite recently the Solar Refining Company was furnished with sufficient gas for its numerous boilers. The gas was furnished through a six inch pipe that connects with the gas main back of the regulator.

The committee also finds that the Steel Works, during all of last year, was supplied with gas for its several large blast furnaces, and that it is still being supplied with gas for said purposes in large quantities. A good supply of gas is also furnished through a six inch pipe that connects with the gas main back of the regulator.

The committee also finds that the Paper Mills, and several other factories than those above mentioned, are except during the winter months, supplied with natural gas in large quantities by the gas company.

The committee also finds that a very large per cent of the illuminating gas furnished by the Lima Gas Light company for illuminating purposes is natural gas furnished to it by the Natural Gas company, from the city mains. When the Steel Works and Refinery are supplied with gas they are first, because of the place and manner their lines tap the gas main, and the city gets only the overplus, or what is not needed by said factories. After the Steel Works and Refinery are supplied, next comes the Lima Gas Light company for what is needed by it for illuminating purposes. If any gas is left the private consumers gets it; if nothing is left, he still has the imperative privilege of paying to the Natural Gas company his monthly contribution of $3.50 per mixer, and the pleasant experience of keeping warm on promises and future prospects.

It will be remembered that at the time the present Gas Rate ordinance was passed in October, 1898, the Gas company, to induce the passage of the ordinance, represented that extensive new gas lands had been recently purchased or leased, and that all factories would in the future be cut off, and that the company would be able to furnish good service to the private consumers of the city. It was also represented that an additional gas main had been constructed from the gas fields to this city, so as to obviate the necessity of a temporary shutting off of the supply in case of a break in one of the mains. The committee is satisfied that such representations were not made in good faith, and were not true, at least in some important respects.

The solicitor advises the committee that under the present ordinance which was passed at the instance of, and at the terms of which were accepted by the Natural Gas company, implies, though it does not specifically state, that the company will furnish reasonable service to the private consumers of the city; if, with the supply of gas at the command of the company, it is able to do so. The committee is of the opinion that the gas company, since the passage of the present ordinance, has had a sufficient supply of gas to have enabled it to furnish good service to the private consumers of the city, had it not, after entering into the contract with the city and agreeing to sell its supply of gas to the private consumers at a stipulated price, sold it to other parties for manufacturing purposes.

The committee recommends that the solicitor be directed to begin proceedings against the Natural Gas company to annul its contract with the city, if in his opinion such action can be maintained.

The committee, farther, being reliably informed that the supply of gas furnished by the Lima Gas Light company for illuminating purposes is of a very inferior quality, and that the price charged therefor is exorbitant, recommends that the solicitor draft and report to the council an ordinance fixing the maximum price that may be charged for gas furnished to the private consumers of the city for illuminating purposes, and fixing the standard of the quality of gas to be furnished.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. SHANNAHAN,
CLARK HOYT,
Committee.

November 25, 1901.

The report was discussed at considerable length, especially by Mr. Shannahan, who urged the adoption of the recommendation contained in it. The report was adopted, all members voting yes, except Mr. Moses.

The mayor reported, the appointment of James Langan, to fill the vacancy on the water works board that was occassioned by the death of M. J. Morris. The appointment was confirmed by a unanimous vote.

The mayor also reported the following appointments on the fire department, which were referred to the fire committee:

"SUNSET MINES" THANKSGIVING.

What the public requires is novelty, and it is to be given to them when "Sunset Mines" will be presented at Faurot's opera house Thursday, Nov. 28. This has been proven by the phenomenal business the play has enjoyed since its original production. There is enough vaudeville to tickle the palate of the vaudeville lovers; enough of the emotional to please the sentimental people in the orchestra, and enough of the heroic to make the gallery gods yell with delight. Seats for both matinee and evening performances will be placed on sale on Wednesday morning.

Marriage of Miss Nella Richie and Mr. Leroy Galvin Last Night.

Number of Pleasant Social Functions. A Quail Luncheon Given by Mrs. Holdridge. 20th Century Club's Open Meeting.

Love, that old song of which the world is never weary, was the cause of the surprise given to many relatives and friends of a happy young couple who were wedded last evening at twilight. The young maiden who took upon her the solemn vows of wifehood, is Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Richie's only child, Nella F. Richie, and the man to who she gave herself Mr. Leroy Galvin, the marriage taking place in the Spring street Lutheran church, Rev. I. J. Miller saying the binding words, making the twain man and wife. The groom's intimate friend, Mr. Warren Melly, was the only witness. The young couple are staying for the present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Melly, 514 west Spring street, their plans for the future being indefinite at present. The bride has been given every advantage an American girl could have, having completed the course of study at Dana Hall, Mass., and later attending Miss Cooper's school at Riverside, N. Y., where she had the best social and educational advantages of that city. She was formally presented to society last December, at the Lima House, where her parents gave her one of the most beautiful parties ever given in this city. She was born and reared in Lima, and has hosts of warm friends who will hope that her marriage will bring her a happy future.

The groom is a well known newspaper man, who came to this city from Jamestown, Ohio, (where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Galvin, now reside) several years ago. Since that time, he has been connected with newspaper work in various capacities and is at present the city editor of the Republican-Gazette. He has a legion of friends, who will felicitate him and wish him all sorts of good fortune.

Hundreds of Lima People Volunteer Evidence That Dispels Doubt.

The columns of this newspaper are day-by-day publishing fresh evidence from Lima people which establishes more fully the great reputation of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The manner in which they take hold of the run down and debilitated is so prompt, strength and energy is so quickly picked up by their use, home evidence is plentiful.

Mrs. May Harnett, of 609 north West street, Lima, Ohio, says:—"Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I got at Melville's Drug Store are a fine tonic and nerve medicine. I was weak, run down and digestive organs sluggish. I used the medicine as directed and it was fine. I eat and sleep well, digestion strong and nerves and body strength all right again. It's a good medicine, and I am pleased to recommend it to others."

MANY PLANS FOR THE MAKING OF A CITY BEAUTIFUL.

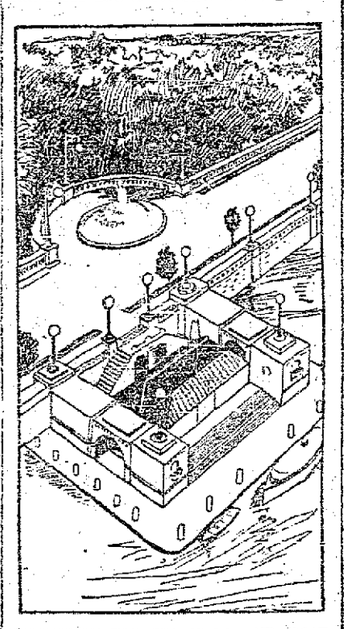
The Municipal Art League's Scheme Providing For Statuary, Fountains and Artistic Bridges—Some Practical Suggestions by Chicagoans.

[Special Correspondence.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Following closely on the heels of the recent tax decision giving the city the right to collect about $20,000,000 in back taxes a scheme has been devised by the Municipal Art league to beautify Chicago. The members of the league are enthusiastic over the project, and it is interesting to hear their varying views on the ways in which the city should be improved.

The league's committee hopes to be able to spend about $1,000,000 annually in the work and to increase the league's membership from its present total of 400 members to a total of 5,000. In addition to this the civic government is expected to co-operate by appropriations from the surplus that will accrue to the city's treasury by virtue of the tax decision.

The league's plan is to organize branches among all the political and social clubs and in societies and organizations of every kind in and near the city. Each branch club is to have its own line of work to perform, but it is to be represented in the league by delegates and thus be under the supervision of the parent body.



SUGGESTION FOR SEA WALL AND BOATHOUSE.

It is hoped to have a branch club in every school in the city and among the employees of all the leading business establishments. Women's clubs are expected to furnish exceptionally large delegations. Each member is to be assessed $2 annually. The committeemen are of the opinion that it will not be difficult to find 500 people in and around Chicago who will take pride enough in the city to make this contribution. It is claimed that the plan is the same as is in vogue in Vienna and other cities of Austria.

The money thus obtained is to be spent solely in public works of art, such as statuary, fountains and triumphal arches. The lake front will probably receive attention first of all, as in it consists Chicago's greatest claim to beauty. It is then hoped to turn attention to the river and transform it from a drainage canal into an artistic waterway, spanned by graceful bridges and flanked on either side by stone walks and balustrades. All of this sounds ideal in the extreme, but the members of the league do not deem it at all removed from the realm of the practical.

The city is also to be improved in other ways than by works of art. The opinion of many is that the first step in the right direction is to abolish the smoke nuisance. As a general thing soft coal is burned in Chicago, and, as every one knows, soft coal emits much more smoke than hard coal does. Those who argue that it will be impossible to do away with the smoke that so often hangs over the city like a pall, basing their objections on the ground that to get rid of it hard coal mines must be found in Illinois, are met by the answer that there are plenty of devices by which soft coal may be burned and the resultant smoke kept from coming too much into evidence and that some business men of Chicago, notably Marshall Field, have already learned how to accomplish this.

A novel idea in regard to the smoke nuisance comes from Mr. Dwight Perkins, who says: "We must get rid of that first, and we can do it. Enforce the smoke nuisance laws to begin with; then investigate that drainage canal proposition. Find out if we can't use for electricity some of the immense horsepower that is going to waste there. If we can, and I don't see why we can't, then we can run our factories by electricity, and that will settle the smoke affair once and for all."

Mr. Perkins is one of many who think that the city cannot properly be termed beautiful until the elevated railroad is a thing of the past. He would put every track in town in a subway. Billboards must go, too, according to the ideas of Mr. Perkins. Ralph Clarkson, Peter B. Wight and many others interested in the beautifying of the city. The billboards of Chicago are no more attractive than are the billboards of other cities, and their coats of many colors, blended together in a most inharmonious way, undoubtedly do detract a great deal from the appearance of the city.

Another essential in the eyes of experts is improvement in street paving. The Chicagoan, however patriotic he may be, is forced to admit that there is decided room for betterment in this direction. The city authorities are rapidly awaking to a realization of this, for the local board of improvements recently paid a visit to Indianapolis to investigate the system of creosote blocks, with which the streets of that city are paved. They returned convinced that there was a good deal to be said in its favor. One point urged for it is its comparative noiselessness under the grind of wheels and horses' hoofs. Another claim is that it is not slippery in any weather, the horses being able to grip the wood sufficiently to give them a purchase without injuring the pavement. For a heavy traffic roadway, however, it is asserted that granite paving is the best. Asphalt of course has its admirers, too, but the great trouble with asphalt lies in the cooking. If overdone, it cracks after winter rigors; if underdone, it grows mushy in the summer heat. Creosote paving is cheaper than granite and dearer than asphalt. What Chicago needs, of course, is the best, and experience alone can decide which of the many systems is best in the long run.

Max Mauch, the Chicago sculptor, who is chairman of the Municipal Art league's committee on plans and education, is an enthusiast on the artistic possibilities of Chicago. He declares: "Chicago has every natural advantage necessary to make it the most beautifully artistic city in America. All it lacks is public interest and the education of the people in what constitutes real art. With its wide expanse of lake front, its natural waterways, location, surroundings and general typography it will rival any city in the world for natural beauty."

Mr. Mauch, in regard to the league's project, says: "Not only will the plan we propose give us adequate revenue to carry out our designs, but it will be a great education to the city in general. What could be of greater advantage to the students than the art clubs in the schools? What the pupil would learn about art would be worth many times more to him than the mere pittance of $2 a year which he is assessed for membership. Women's societies will find the new work a source of rare entertainment as well as instruction. To employees of stores, manufactories and other business establishments whose opportunities for study are limited membership in the league will be of great educational value."

The committee that has devised the novel way of beautifying Chicago is composed of Mr. Mauch, Professor Charles Zeublin of the University of Chicago, Professor von Kleuze of the same university, Louis H. Sullivan, architect, and P. J. Weber, architect.

WORLD'S FAIR ANTIQUITIES.

[Special Correspondence.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—The advancing preparations for the celebration of the signing of the documents by which title to the territory embraced in the Louisiana purchase passed from France to the United States awaken interest in things contemporaneous with that event or associated with that pioneer period. One of the relics of those days is the first Protestant church erected west of the Mississippi river, still standing near Jackson, Cape Girardeau county, this state, being now used as a hay barn. It was built of logs in 1806 by a Baptist congregation and was long known as Bethel church, having for some years the distinction of being the only house of Protestant worship west of the river. Rev. David Green, a native of Virginia, was its first pastor and remained in charge until his death in 1809. The building will probably be moved to this city and made an exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

As an especially significant and appropriate reminder of the time of the signing of the purchase treaty the faculty of the University of Virginia, upon the suggestion of the alumni residing in St. Louis, will recommend to the state legislature the erection of a state building at the world's fair that shall be a reproduction of the Monticello mansion of Thomas Jefferson. This will doubtless be done. The faculty will also ask the 5,000 alumni for funds to erect a world's fair building modeled after the rotunda of the university, to be a permanent museum and hall of fame and to contain a marble statue of Jefferson.

Davis I. Bushnell, chief of archaeology of the Peabody institute, Boston, has located fourteen prehistoric Indian mounds on the world's fair site, St. Louis is known as the Mound City, which gives the find a special interest. At least one of the mounds will be preserved as an exhibit for world's fair visitors to see. The others will disappear in the grading and building operations.

THE ISLE OF JERSEY

WHERE THE LAND IS RICH AND THE FARMER POOR.

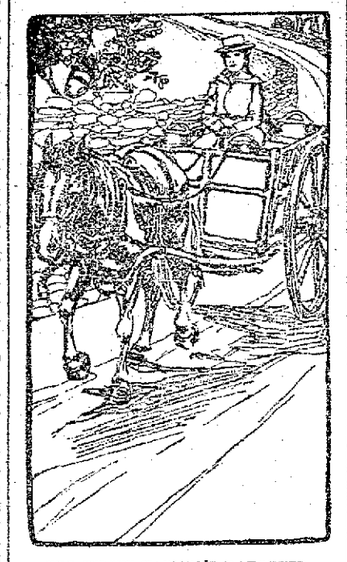
High Ground Rents the Curse of the Beautiful Channel Island—Climate Charming Even in November—A Noontime Visit.

[Special Correspondence.]

ST. HELIER'S, Isle of Jersey, Nov. 13.—November in the old channel isle of Jersey! I doubt if the "islands of the blest," if we could find them and dwell therein forevermore, would show us a lovelier spot or a fairer season. In truth, if the "islands of the blest" are places of rest you need only come to this place to find it.

If a wornout worker from a whirling, seething American city wants to find his nerves and his head again after losing them at home, here is the one spot of earth to loaf through autumn days till he regains them.

The land of the island is mostly devoted to pasturage and potato fields. The dazzling, living green of its pastures is never seen in America except on the Pacific coast in Oregon, Washington and British America. Autumn lingers till January. Roses bloom outdoors until Christmas, not luxuriantly, but here and there one, fair and sweet as the lingering image of a happy dream after you have awakened. Heliotropes and fuchsias keep the roses company, while the glory of Jersey chrysanthemums in November is one of the pictures that a mere pen cannot paint. (Pen is poetic license for typewriter.)



THE JERSEY FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

Great heaps of apples dot the orchards, waiting to be crushed into cider, and the pleasant, aromatic smell of the pomace fills the air, the bees buzzing all about to suck honey from the rich juice. Black and white magpies, large as half grown chickens and nearly as tame, hop and feed in the pastures and gardens.

The soil throughout the island is as rich as that of the best New Jersey market gardens. Here is the native home of the unrivaled Jersey cow, here are the best apples in Britain, albeit not nearly so good as those of the United States and Canada. The climate is so mild that farm work may be carried on outdoors the year round. Jersey furnishes early potatoes to the whole United Kingdom and gets top prices for them.

An unlimited supply of fertilizing material is cast up by the sea without money and without price, and now as I write the beautiful roads are fragrant with the trailing kelp and salt water weed spilled in the highway or dumped in rows alongside the fields. Jersey farmers get their potatoes out of the ground the middle of May; then the rich soil invariably returns them another bounteous crop of turnips, barley, cauliflower, etc.

Why doesn't every farmer in Great Britain, then, migrate to Jersey and get rich? Listen. The farmers of this generous and beautiful isle are all in debt, struggling hopelessly, toiling like slaves—yes, and living like slaves too. Why? Because of the awful rents the landowners wring from the tillers of the soil. Fifty dollars an acre is the annual rent—rent, mind you, not purchase price—of a good Jersey farm. I have a friend who is one of the officers of the Jersey Horticultural society, an expert farmer, gardener and dairyman. I called on him at his home before writing this letter. I met his eldest daughter driving to town upon a milk wagon, taking the morning's milking to customers in St. Helier's. When I arrived at the house, I found a second daughter feeding the calves and attending to live stock. I lingered in the orchard and garden till noon, for I did not wish to interfere with the girls' labor. At 12 o'clock I saw my farmer friend, his wife and the children whom I had not already met returning from the field, where every one of them, wife and all, had been digging, hoeing, hauling and working at this, that and the other back breaking field labor.

My friend, I know, would have invited me to their farm dinner if he and his goodwife had not been ashamed to. If I had caught a glimpse of that farm table, I would have seen a board without cloth or serviettes, a bowl of soup and some loaves of bread, with perhaps slices of bacon; no milk, no butter, no cream. The Jersey farmer keeps only one milking in the week for his own family, and that is on Sunday. The merciless rent takes all his substance, and thus it is to be a farmer tilling the most fertile soil in the pleasantest climate that Great Britain possesses.

AN HOUR WITH BOOKS.

Miss Repplier's Story of Feline Life. Fiction and Adventure.

[Special Correspondence.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—To that increasing community of readers devoted to the study of animal life, particularly feline life and characteristics, Miss Agnes Repplier's latest book, "The Fireside Sphinx," will have a special charm and interest. It is written in her most entertaining vein, and those who have perused with delight her previous works can realize before they open its pages something of the entertainment that awaits them in this new volume. That Miss Repplier has a passion for cats became known to the public some years ago when "Agrippina" was published. This essay on her favorite cat was read on both continents and proclaimed to those who did not know the fact that if there was anything in the world that Miss Repplier loved more than another it was her cat and, therefore, all cats for its sake.

Besides a goodly number of real cats, sleek and handsome, Miss Repplier has at her apartments in this city perhaps the largest collection of cats carved in stone, porphyry or bronze or painted on paper or canvas to be found anywhere in the country. Surely if any one is competent to write about cats it is Miss Repplier. But she writes as intelligently and entertainingly about a good many other things besides cats. She was introduced into the inner circles of American letters by Thomas Bailey Aldrich through the pages of The Atlantic Monthly. She has read much, traveled some, and the gleanings of her reading and travels, dominated always by a strong and winning personality, have resulted in a half dozen sparkling and inimitable books. These books are in part reprints of essays which have appeared in The Atlantic, The Century, Scribner's, Harper's and other magazines.

As Christmas time approaches we find here, as elsewhere, conspicuously displayed on the shelves of the bookshops the works of George Alfred Henty, who is pre-eminently the boys' favorite author on either side of the Atlantic. To the boy who delights in stories of the strenuous life of the camp and field no Christmas would be quite complete without its gift of "Henty books." Mr. Henty, who lives in London, is now sixty-nine years of age, but his marvelous powers of literary production continue unabated. In his youth he left Cambridge university to enter the Crimean war, and he has been a correspondent from the battlefield during most of the important European wars since then. This experience has fitted him for writing tales of military adventure, and there seems to be no end to his resources. This season's new "Henty books" are "With Roberts in Pretoria," "At the Point of the Bayonet" and "To Herat and Cabul."

A new novel in which frontier experience and adventure form an important part is "The Man From Glengarry," by Ralph A. Connor, author of "Black Rock" and "The Sky Pilot." In these his characters are miners and cowboys of the Canadian northwest, while in "The Man From Glengarry" he deals with the lumbermen of the Ottawa river region, the original source of his other types. It is now generally known that Ralph Connor's real name is Charles W. Gordon and that he is the pastor of a young and growing church at Winnipeg, Manitoba. His father and mother were Scotch Presbyterians, who came to the Canadian wilds forty years ago, and the son was born in the highland settlement of Glengarry, in the peninsular strip of eastern Ontario known as the

MISS AGNES REPPLIER.

Indian lands. It is in this region of his boyhood haunts that he has laid the scene of his new story.

Another story in which a lumber camp furnishes the setting for the principal scenes, though wholly different in treatment from Ralph Connor's picture of the logging camps of Canada, is "The Strength of the Hills," by Miss Florence Wilkinson. Her scene is laid in the Adirondacks, and the process of unfolding the character of her hero necessitates an ample and interesting description of a typical lumber camp in the woods of northern New York. Though there is no strong play of plot and counterplot, the story is one that holds the attention and engages the affections, its characters show deep insight into human nature, and its descriptive passages evince an earnest love of nature.

Among recently published books of travel and adventure which seem destined to find appreciative readers in abundant numbers are "First Across the Continent," the story of the exploring expedition of Lewis and Clark in 1804-05, by Noah Brooks; "Arts and Arms," which gives the experiences of a university man in khaki, by Maurice Fitzgibbon, and "When We Destroyed the Gaspee," in the Stories of American History series, by James Otis.

That Lame Back

You can hardly straighten up, the back feels so sore. There's a chance that it is kidney "trouble," and that is something which it is dangerous to neglect. The best medicine for disease of the kidneys is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The use of this medicine has resulted in some remarkable cures. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, purifies the blood and relieves the kidneys from clogging impurities.

"I feel it my duty to let you know that I have recently advised a young gentleman who was suffering badly with kidney and bladder disease to try your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Frank Starks, M. D., of Flatonia, Fayette Co., Texas. "He bought four bottles from our druggist here, and after he had used the first bottle he began to improve. Sometimes he was unable to walk ten steps; now he can ride any horse without any pain in his back and he looks as well and sound as a young boy. His age is only 28. He has suffered for nearly three years, and several other doctors called the case incurable, but I had confidence in Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I have been offered one hundred dollars several times already for my kind advice, but I would not accept it because I want everybody to know what Dr. Pierce's famous medicine can do.

"This testimony is absolutely true, and the reason I haven't mentioned the young gentleman's name is because he don't want to have his name published."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." The sole motive for substitution is to enable the dealer to make the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious preparations.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets stimulate the action of the sluggish liver. They should always be used with "Discovery" when there is need of a laxative.

KEEP THEM AT WORK

THAT IS MATTHEW BORDEN'S WAY OF TREATING HIS EMPLOYEES.

Not as a Matter of Philanthropy, but as a Practical Business Policy—The Fall River Calico King and His Relations to the Textile Workers.

[Special Correspondence.]

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 25.—"What will Borden do?" is the question which Fall River cotton goods manufacturers ask themselves when they contemplate making a change in the rate of wages, the price of goods or the regulation of the output. It galls them to do it; but, despite the fact that Mr. Borden operates but one of the fifty cotton cloth factories in this city, they are compelled to do as he does in the matter of wages, prices and production. They must follow the lead of the "Calico King," however distasteful it may be to them.

Mr. Borden, however, does not return the compliment and ask what they will do, but goes ahead with boldness and independence and does what he thinks will return the best profits to himself and keep his people at work at a just rate of wages. While he does not pose as a philanthropist or the especial champion of labor, he has repeatedly raised the pay of his employees when other manufacturers sought to lower the schedule and kept his plant running when others would have closed down their mills. When the markets were glutted with the Fall River product, Mr. Borden would buy up the surplus, thus keeping his own employees at work and compelling the other manufacturers in self protection to do the same.

Thus Mr. Borden has come to be regarded by the 50,000 textile workers in this city as their best friend and most powerful ally and by the manufacturers as a radical labor agitator, an upsetter of values and a disorganizing element in business. The fact is he is neither of these, neither the ally of the laboring people nor the enemy of the manufacturers, but simply a shrewd business man, much shrewder than his competitors engaged in the manufacture and sale of the commodity formerly and familiarly known as calico.

If Mr. Borden's conduct of his business inures to the benefit of the workers or causes the discomfiture of the manufacturers, he claims neither credit nor accepts blame.

Mr. Borden does not believe it necessary to reduce wages, close factories or restrict production every now and then on the ground that the market is glutted and that there is no demand for the goods. He insists that "the thing to do is to go out and find a market instead of sitting around and cutting down mill hands' wages."

Early in his career Mr. Borden formed certain definite ideas how best to make and profitably sell print cloths. Among these were the desirability, at times the necessity, of keeping the operatives steadily at work and the desirability of paying them the highest wages that the conditions of the business would warrant. To this policy he has steadfastly adhered, though frequently running counter to the notions of other manufacturers.

It is perhaps not so much Mr. Borden's plan of conducting his factory and his treatment of his employees as his bold and sometimes quite sensational manipulations of the print cloth market that is the particular painful thorn in the side of his competitors. They have often rebelled against his dominating influence in the market, and combinations and pools have been made against him. These he has always thwarted, remaining master of the situation.

Matthew C. D. Borden belongs to an old Fall River family, founded two centuries ago. Matthew early developed his father's genius for business. He was educated at Yale and immediately upon his graduation began to learn the cotton business, starting as a stock clerk in a New York jobbing house. From this position he rose to be a partner in a commission house handling Fall River goods. He began as a manufacturer in 1897 and today controls and operates the largest print cloth plant in this city and probably in the world, employing 3,500 hands, consuming 1,000 bales of cotton and turning out 60,000 pieces of cloth a week.

Aside from the salutary and helpful effect his lifelong business policy of "keeping people at work at the highest possible wages" has had upon the conditions of his own employees and incidentally those of his competitors, Mr. Borden has done much for philanthropic enterprises, though disclaiming the title of philanthropist. An instance was the building of a magnificent structure for the Fall River Boys' club, designed to keep boys off the street. To this club he gave an endowment of $100,000.

GATHMANN GUN TESTS

SATISFIED WITH ITS PERFORMANCE

Contends That the Recent Experiments at Sandy Hook Bear Out His Theory of the Gun's Value—Claims He Has Proved That He Can Sink Any Battleship.

The mixed board of army and navy officers detailed to witness and report on the performances of the Gathmann gun at Sandy Hook did not make a further trial of the gun the other day. The board intended to try a projectile to be weighted with 500 pounds of sand as a substitute for the wet guncotton used in the Gathmann shell. The object was to ascertain what the shell was capable of doing without the explosive. The board, however, decided to abandon any further test after witnessing the effect of a regular service shell charged with twenty pounds of maximite, says the New York Tribune. The latter was discharged from the regular twelve inch rifle with a reduced charge of smokeless powder at a distance representing four miles. The service shell, with a muzzle velocity of 1,800 feet a second, struck the target and shattered it to fragments. Mr. Gathmann made the following statement:

"In view of the numerous reports as to results at Sandy Hook I desire to make a few statements that will, I trust, make the situation clearer to the average reader than it must now appear. My system was properly described by the testing board in a report to the secretary of war made about a year ago as follows:

"'What it is proposed to accomplish by the Gathmann system is, in effect, as presented by the inventor, to crush or break in the side of an armored vessel by the impact above the water line of a Gathmann projectile; upon striking the guncotton charge will detonate, and the forces generated will act in the direction of the line of fire, destroying the structure of the vessel over a considerable area in the vicinity of the impact; in addition the stress will be transmitted through the water to the underwater body of the vessel and open up a portion of the vessel below the water line.'

"Three shots have been fired from the Gathmann gun. The first was not effective, as will sometimes happen, there being no complete detonation because of a defect in the adjustment of the fuse, rectified in the others. The second and third did have detonation. By the second the plate was driven back thirty-three inches at one end and about a foot at the other. The plates project four feet below the water line, so that this blow—equivalent to a ramming action—would open up some forty square feet as an inlet for water and sink any ship afloat. This is independent of the expected destruction of the lighter plates below the armor, which I could not prove because the target is on land. I only claim what is shown by the target itself. The third shot broke the plate in two pieces from top to bottom and drove it back still farther than the second. It now stands to the left of its original position over seven feet and at the left some eight feet farther back than its original position, with the whole cofferdam structure crushed and timber braces smashed. Either of these blows would have sunk any battleship, since no human agency could stop the incoming water, especially facing the terrific and death dealing onset of the gases from the detonation of 400 pounds of guncotton, which would have instantly killed every man on the ship who was not under cover. This result is a fulfillment of my intention as stated by the board. The targets were prepared by the chief of naval construction and were to represent the side of the latest type of battleship.

"The results of the firing today (Nov. 18) with the service rifle were also very remarkable, and from this date it is inevitable that high explosives will be the shell fillers of the future, and the solid shots will pass to the oblivion of smooth bore guns. Either result at Sandy Hook would have put any ship out of action. It remains to compare the probabilities of achievement by the two methods, their safety and availability. Both do enough when they do it as on the proving grounds. By mine safety to the user is assured. My fuse is safe beyond peradventure, and I defy any one to create a mishap to the main charge of a normally arranged shell. This is not true of any other system, including the one used by the twelve inch rifle. My effective range is as far as the object can be hit and at any appreciable angle. By the other system penetration must be had, and that is not possible at great range, such as will prevail in all future conflicts.

"In a battle with high explosives as the destructive agent the Gathmann torpedo could destroy at long range before the enemy could reach effective distance from which armor could be penetrated. I therefore have the inestimable advantage of perfect safety, coupled with more than double the range of any known rival. My theory often expressed has long been that future wars will be fought with weapons which cannot be replied to by an enemy who has once been hit. It is the first object of war to destroy the enemy with as little damage as possible to yourself. The long series of tests, now covering more than five years, have established by overwhelming proof my contentions of unlimited efficiency at any possible range, safety to the user and destruction to the enemy."

A WHITE HOUSE GUEST.

A Bright Oklahoma Girl to Be Entertained by the President.

Bossie Mulhall is soon to be the guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. She will leave her Oklahoma home in a few days on her way to Washington, accompanied by her father, the noted Zack Mulhall.

All this is interesting for several reasons. First of all, Miss Bossie is remarkably beautiful. Next, in addition to the conventional accomplishments usual in an up to date young woman, she has several that are decidedly unique, for Miss Bossie can rope a steer or ride a bucking broncho with the best of the cowboys. It was these accomplishments that won the unbounded admiration of President Roosevelt and which resulted in an invitation to the White House. Finally, Miss Bossie is said to be the original of Bossie Brander in Charles H. Hoyt's excruciatingly funny farce, "A Texas Steer."

Like President Roosevelt, Bossie Mulhall is fond of strenuous life. She has been reared upon a ranch, this most remarkable young woman. She can shoot with the skill of a frontiersman. She can lasso and tie a wild steer with the dexterity of the most expert cowman. She has courage and steady nerve and can brand a yearling without flinching. She rides astride and boldly. She does not know the meaning of fear. She loves the open air and the plains. Hers has been a life out of doors, yet she is cultured and well read. She plays classical music and is versed in social graces.

And, above all, she has beauty of that striking type which speaks for good health. She is a brunette and of beautiful figure. Her age is not more than twenty-one years.

She first met President Roosevelt at the rough riders' reunion in Oklahoma City a year ago. Her younger sister, Lucile, was present on that occasion, and it was Lucile who gave an exhibition of riding and of lassoing steers that excited the admiration of the colonel of the rough riders. But Lucile is no more expert than her sister Bossie.

It is related of Bossie that one day, while riding on her father's ranch with Lucile, she started a brace of vicious gray wolves. The young woman immediately took up the chase. Bossie swung her lasso, and it found the neck of the larger of the two wolves. Wheeling her pony, she started for the ranchhouse, dragging the wolf. Several miles had been covered when the wolf freed himself by gnawing the lariat in two. Not daunted, Bossie made another noose, and again she roped the wolf. This time she drove him round and round a tree, until Lobo had no more tether, and then, having no revolver with her, she loosed a stirrup and beat the animal to death.

President Roosevelt, while a guest of her father, Zack Mulhall, during the rough riders' reunion, admired the wolf pelt. Later the pelt was mounted and today is within the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay.—Kansas City Journal.

Gainsborough Hats.

It did not take the recovery of the long lost Gainsborough picture to bring the Gainsborough hat back to favor. Truth to tell, it has never been out of favor, nor has there been a time during the past fifty years when the Gainsborough of conventional shape could not have been worn with perfect propriety.

But the recovery of the picture brought it into notice, and it only took one glance at the stately, half smiling duchess to show the women of the new century what a pretty hat had come down to them—a gift from the past, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Gainsborough hat, as worn by the Duchess of Devonshire and as seen in the paintings of the great English court painter, was a very large affair, quite flat in the brim and rather low in the crown. To give it height the crown was trimmed and the brim was made undulating by being turned up at one side. In addition to this and as a crowning touch it was worn tilted upon the head. Its distinguishing characteristic was its trailing feathers, and these today as well as then mark the hat as distinctively that of the Gainsborough.

DETECTIVE BLAIZE

Admits That He Had a Personal Grievance to Satisfy

In Hunting for Affidavits.

Committee of Five Members of the Allen County Bar Association Begin the Investigation Asked for by Prosecuting Attorney Klinger.

The investigation instituted at the request of Prosecuting Attorney Klinger, is being conducted today in the court library room, and the committee appointed by Judge Cunningham for that purpose is making it as thorough as possible. Outside of representatives of the press and those directly interested, there were but few spectators present and the character of the evidence was not of such a nature as to be likely to draw a large attendance during the proceeding.

The statement can be made without the least prejudice that nothing has developed so far that casts the least reflection on Mr. Klinger as an attorney or an officer of the law. The charges against him, which the published affidavits made appear so harsh and condemnatory must be supported by stronger evidence than what has yet appeared, or the examination will leave but little for the committee to do when it comes to weighing it at the close.

Father Rupert was the first witness called and the examination was begun by Mr. Motter, at the conclusion of which questions were asked by other members of the committee and by Mr. Klinger himself. The substance of the testimony offered by Rev. Rupert was that he made an effort to have Mr. Klinger save the boys from being indicted because he had talked with their father, who was willing to have arrangements made to send them to a Catholic school. He wrote several letters to Mr. Klinger on the subject, and they were introduced as exhibits. At the conclusion of the examination, Rev. Rupert made the statement unsolicited that he acted only because he wanted to see the boys saved from disgrace, but had he known that such a serious state of affairs would grow out of his efforts, he would not have done so.

John Monigan, father of the boys, was the next witness called, and while he was definite enough on some questions, he departed from his statements made before the grand jury and absolutely denied having offered either Mr. Justice or Mr. Hover money, if they would have the proceedings against him stopped. He was led carefully by questions put by Mr. Klinger up to the very time and place this offer was made, but he insisted that he had not asked the gentleman to accept any sum of money from him. He acknowledged having talked to both members of the firm on the subject of the theft, and might have asked the amount of the loss, but could not remember having requested them to stop proceedings and accept in return the value of the stolen property. He said he never had any conversation with Mr. Klinger either before or during the time the grand jury was in session.

Mr. Klinger—You were a witness before the grand jury?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you say there that you asked Hover & Justus what their loss was and they said it was $225?

A. I don't remember that I said that.

Q. And didn't you say you told them that you would pay the amount, if they would stop proceedings?

A. No, sir, I did not.

L. E. Justus, of 290 south Pierce street, a member of the firm, was examined next by Mr. Leete. He told of having had a conversation with Monigan at Ashton's drug store, and Monigan said, "If you have the least shadow of evidence against me, I'll settle." He wanted me to go with him to several prominent business men to prove his character. I saw him again at Ackerman & Castle's machine shop, and in the presence of Mr. Hover, my partner, he again offered to make a settlement. I told him the amount of goods stolen was about $225, but that a settlement was out of the question as the case was now in the hands of the authorities. I had a talk with Mr. Klinger after the grand jury had reported, but not before or during the time it was in session. I received a letter from Mr. Klinger to call at his office and went there on the evening of the 15th of October. He said he understood we were dissatisfied because no indictment had been returned and I said we were. His reply was that the evidence was not sufficient. The matter was talked over fully and Mr. Klinger remarked that the boys were young and it would be to bad to send them to the reform school under indictment, when there were other means at hand to dispose of them.

The affidavit which Mr. Justus and Mr. Hover had signed was then referred to and Mr. Motter asked the witness how he happened to sign it.

Mr. Justus replied that he was asked to do so. I do not know who prepared it. It was not done in my presence, but after it was drawn up in writing Mr. Blaze and M. J. Sanford asked me to attach my signature. Blaze talked to me about it two or three times before I did so. We had him employed on the case, and he was to have been paid after the recovery of the goods. They were never found to my knowledge. I did not read the affidavit. It was read to me, and all I did was to add the last paragraph, showing that Monigan had offered to pay us the value of the goods if we would have criminal proceedings stopped. "I HAD NO DESIRE TO MAKE THE AFFIDAVIT, OR THOUGHT OF IT UNTIL ASKED SEVERAL TIMES TO DO SO."

Blaze told me the Prosecutor had been careless as he and Mills had plenty of evidence to convict if it had been used. He did not charge Mr. Klinger with being corrupt. "I SAW NOTHING BEFORE THE GRAND JURY THAT WAS IRREGULAR. I WAS PROPERLY EXAMINED."

Mr. Klinger asked the witness if he didn't remember being recalled after having completed his testimony before the grand jury, and asked concerning the proposition made to him by Monigan to settle the matter. Mr. Justus remembered having been so interrogated and that he explained the situation to the jury.

Mr. Klinger—What did I do to warrant you in signing the affidavit?

A. I thought if it was true it wouldn't hurt to have it published.

Q. But you did not know from your own knowledge whether it was true or not, did you?

A. "MY OPINION WAS BASED MERELY ON WHAT MR. BLAZE TOLD ME WAS THE EVIDENCE. I KNEW NOTHING TO MY OWN PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE."

Following Mr. Justus came his partner, J. C. Hover, who lives one and a half miles west of Lima. He stated in reply to Mr. Cable's question that he had no personal knowledge as to who committed either of the thefts, his source of information being Mr. Blaze, Chief Mills, and some of the boys who took the stuff. The Monigan boys confessed to Chief Mills and Sheriff Bogart. John Monigan came to my house on Sunday and said he was surprised that I should believe him guilty of the theft. He wanted to know what evidence I had, but I refused to tell him. He then offered to make a settlement and said he had the money with him. I told him he was in the hands of the law and it would have to take its course. He met Mr. Justus and myself again Monday morning and made the same proposition to us both and we again declined to consider it.

Interrogated as to his visit at Mr. Klinger's office, Mr. Hover repeated much what had been told by his partner, but added that Mr. Klinger said in the interview that the real reason the boys were not indicted was because their father and Rev. Rupert had promised to see that they were sent to a Catholic school, and it was not right that they should be cast among criminal at their age.

Witness said he told Mr. Klinger he had no right to pose as judge and jury. As for the affidavit he had signed, it was read to him and he read it himself before signing. He did not do it solely because he was asked to do so, but because he did not think justice had been done. I told him there were witnesses who were not permitted to testify and that some who did testify were not given the chance to tell all they knew. I told him I was one of them, as I requested to be recalled to tell about Monigan having offered to make a settlement, and did not get to do so.

When asked by Mr. Klinger if the question, "Have you anything else you wish to tell?" wasn't put to him, witness could not remember, but stated that he had not thought of the conversation with Monigan until after he was dismissed. Mr. Hover said he was also indignant because Mr. Klinger had asked him in the presence of the grand jury if he was sure he hadn't removed the missing goods himself. When asked by one of the committee if this feeling hadn't induced him to sign the affidavit he replied that it had not.

The court of inquiry adjourned at 12 o'clock with Mr. Hover still on the stand, and he was recalled again when the committee met at one, but there was no additional light thrown on the matter.

At the hour of going to press, Detective Blaze is being examined and admits that his grievance against Mr. Klinger was because the latter had refused to give him employment.

SIR KNIGHTS

Of Banner Tent, K. O. T. M. Surprised

By Lady Maccabees of Allen Hive, No. 197.

Initiatory Work Last Night Followed by a Magnificent Banquet That the Ladies Served.

Last evening there was an unusually large attendance of members and visiting Sir Knights of the Maccabees at the regular review of Banner tent No. 356, K. O. T. M., on account of the initiatory work being exemplified by Banner tent's team for the initiation of three candidates and while the work was enjoyed by all present the clever surprise that was planned and executed by the ladies of Allen hive No. 197, L. O. T. M., was, if possible, enjoyed more than the secret work. After the review had ended the doors of the banquet room were thrown open and the Sir Knights were ushered to well filled banquet tables that had been prepared by the ladies. The repast was greatly enjoyed and after the banquet was over the Knights donned their regalia and executed a drill for the entertainment of the ladies and tendered them a hearty vote of thanks.

SHANTY

Proved to be a Harmless Club House.

Chief Mills Investigated the Complaint Made to Supt. Miller and Cleared It Up.

Complaint having been made to Superintendent Miller of a shanty on south Pine street that was kept as a rendezvous for small boys, who were in the habit of going there at night to play cards and carouse, he had the matter placed in the hands of Chief Mills, and an investigation was made this morning. Accompanied by Truant Officer Povenmire, the chief visited the shanty, which is just back of the house occupied by Mrs. Miller, a widow, but they found a much different place than what had been described. Several young men, ranging in age from seventeen to twenty, have had the shanty fitted up for a club house which is neatly carpeted and furnished, and altogether the place is harmless. There was found a fair collection of books and magazines, and while all the time is not spent in reading, there is no drinking or gambling. The complaint did not come from neighbors, in fact Mrs. Miller says she is glad to have the boys there.
